

Dear ASLIA Members

Re: NAATI Certification System

ASLIA supports the new Certification credentialing system of interpreters, which has recently been launched by NAATI. ASLIA supports this new credentialing system, as it is one element that can contribute to ensuring high standards of practice and professionalism.

ASLIA would like to inform you that many interpreting agencies also support the new NAATI credential changes. This means that preference will be given to practitioners who hold NAATI Certification as of 1 July 2018, in order to enable practitioners currently holding NAATI Accreditation time to transition to the new certification system. Some of these agencies are outlined below.

Certification requires practitioners to undertake continuing professional development, and to be accountable to ensure that enhancement of skill levels are firmly in place. This transition will set in motion a minimum standard of professional development practices, as seen with many other professions.

Warm regards
